

The FCC should take a strong stand against copy protection for DTV. The long standing practice of fair use has been argued time and time again, and fair use has always won through. Consumers need to have this right upheld.